About this guide. BrookeApp is billing and Fitness Wallet tracking for personal trainers. This guide walks through every screen, in the order you will meet it, with pictures from a demo account ("Brooke Fitness"). The same guide lives inside the app: click your name at the bottom of the sidebar, then Documentation.

Welcome to BrookeApp

BrookeApp keeps the money side of personal training in one place: who your clients are, what each of them pays, which sessions happened, what you are owed, and what you owe the gym. It replaces the notebook, the spreadsheet and the “did she pay me for last Tuesday?” text messages.

Two ways a client can pay

Every client is on a plan, and a plan works in one of two ways.

	Pay-as-you-go (Fitness Wallet)	Monthly membership
How it works	The client deposits money into a Fitness Wallet, like topping up a transit card. Each session deducts a per-person rate plus GST.	A flat fee plus GST is posted to the client’s account every month. Every session is included.
What you watch	The wallet balance. When it runs low, ask for a top-up.	Whether the monthly fee has been paid.
Good for	Clients who train irregularly or in small groups.	Regulars who train often and prefer one predictable bill.

How money flows

1. You set up your rates once. A service is something you offer, such as “Personal Training (60 min)”. A plan holds the price of each service per person, for one, two, three or four people training together.
2. A client pays you by cash, cheque or e-Transfer. You record it on their page, and it lands in their Fitness Wallet (or pays down a monthly fee).
3. You log a session and tick who came. BrookeApp works out the rate from how many people showed up and deducts each person’s share, plus GST, from their wallet.
4. Reports add it up by month and by tax year, with GST shown both as charged and as received, so you and your accountant can pick the basis you remit on.

Note: Rates are always entered before GST, and GST (5% by default) is added on top. Money you receive is treated as GST-inclusive. You never have to do the tax arithmetic yourself.

A tour of the dashboard

The dashboard is the first thing you see after logging in. It answers “how is this month going?” and “who needs my attention?” at a glance.

The dashboard. The three buttons at the top right are the actions you will use most: Add client, Book session and Log session.

- The four cards show active clients, sessions completed this month, revenue before GST (with the GST charged underneath) and payments received this month.
- Fitness Wallets running low lists pay-as-you-go clients who no longer have enough credit for one more single session. A red number is a balance owing.
- Monthly members with a balance owing lists members whose fee has been posted but not paid.
- Recent activity is the latest entries across every client's ledger, and Upcoming scheduled sessions shows the next few bookings from your calendar.

Finding your way around

The sidebar on the left is the same on every page:

- Training: Dashboard, Clients, Calendar and Sessions. This is where you spend most of your time.
- Pricing: Plans, Services and Invoices. Plans and services are set up once and rarely touched; Invoices is where you chase money you have asked for.
- Reports: Monthly report, Annual report and Gym usage.
- Your name at the bottom opens a menu with Settings, this Documentation, and Log Out.

Click your name at the bottom of the sidebar to open this guide, or to reach Settings.

Tip: Every chapter of this guide can be printed on its own with Print this page, and the whole guide is available as a PDF with Download PDF at the top of the Documentation page.

Getting started

This chapter takes you from no account to a workspace that is ready for your first client. It should take about fifteen minutes.

Create your account

1. Open BrookeApp in your browser and click Sign up under the login form.
2. Enter your name, email address and a password, then click Create account.

The screenshot shows a web form titled "Create an account" with a double-headed arrow icon above it. Below the title is the instruction "Enter your details below to create your account". The form contains four input fields: "Name" (with the example text "Sam Taylor"), "Email address" (with the example text "sam.taylor@example.com"), "Password" (with masked characters ""), and "Confirm password" (with masked characters ""). A purple "Create account" button is positioned below the "Confirm password" field. At the bottom of the form, there is a link that says "Already have an account? Log in".

Your name here is what clients will see unless you set a business name later in Settings.

3. Check your inbox for a message from BrookeApp and click the verification link. Until you do, the app shows a reminder page instead of the dashboard.

If the message has not arrived after a few minutes, check your junk folder, then use Resend verification email.

Log in

Come back any time by entering your email and password. Tick Remember me on your own computer so you stay logged in.

Forgot your password? follows the usual email link flow.

Important: Everything you enter is private to your account. Other trainers on BrookeApp cannot see your clients, prices or money.

Set things up in this order

The app is flexible, but this order avoids backtracking, because each step is used by the next one.

1. Settings → Business. Your business name, phone, whether you are registered for GST and your GST number, which payment methods you accept, your e-Transfer email, and the booking instructions that go into every client email. See the Settings chapter.
2. Settings → Gyms. Add the gym or studio you rent space at and how it charges you. This lets the Gym usage report reconcile your monthly gym invoice. Skip it if you do not rent gym space. See the Settings chapter.
3. Services. What you offer and how long a session usually lasts. Most trainers start with one or two. See the Services and plans chapter.
4. Plans. The rate grid for pay-as-you-go and family clients, the fee for monthly members, and a package size if you sell sessions in blocks. You can have several plans so long-time clients can keep an older rate. See the Services and plans chapter.
5. Clients. Add each person, choose their plan, and record their first deposit. See the Clients and Fitness Wallets chapter.

After that, day-to-day use is just Log session after training, Book session for anything in the future, Request payment when a wallet runs low, and Record payment when money comes in.

Tip: You do not need to enter history. Start from today: record each client's current balance as a single deposit, and everything from here on is tracked.

Settings

Settings is reached from the menu under your name at the bottom of the sidebar. It has five pages: Profile, Business, Gyms, Password and Appearance.

Profile

Your name and login email. Changing your email means verifying the new address before the dashboard opens again. The Delete account button at the bottom removes your workspace and everything in it after you confirm with your password; there is no undo.

The screenshot shows the BrookeApp interface. On the left is a sidebar with a 'BrookeApp' header and a menu categorized by 'Training' (Dashboard, Clients, Calendar, Sessions), 'Pricing' (Plans, Services, Invoices), and 'Reports' (Monthly report, Annual report, Gym usage). At the bottom of the sidebar is a user profile card for 'Brooke'. The main content area is titled 'Settings' with the subtitle 'Manage your profile and account settings'. It features a tabbed interface with 'Profile' selected. The 'Profile' section includes the instruction 'Update your name and email address' and fields for 'Name' (containing 'Brooke') and 'Email' (containing 'brooke@example.com'). Below these fields is a purple 'Save' button. Further down is a 'Delete Account' section with the instruction 'Delete your account and all of its resources' and a red 'Delete Account' button.

Profile is your login identity. The name clients see comes from Business.

Business settings for the demo trainer.

1. Business name and Phone appear in client emails, on the client's Fitness Wallet page, and in reports. Leave the name blank to use your own name.
2. I am registered for GST. Tick it and enter your GST/HST number and rate (5% in British Columbia). When it is off, no GST is added to sessions or fees, which is right for a small supplier.
3. Accepted payment methods. Only the methods you tick appear when you record a payment. Cash, cheque and e-Transfer are available; card payments are deliberately not offered yet. At least one must stay on.
4. e-Transfer email is shown to clients as the address to send money to.
5. Booking instructions is a short paragraph, for example "text me at 604-555-0199", that goes into every invite, receipt and wallet email so clients know how to reach you. Clients cannot book themselves; they always contact you.
6. Email defaults. Two switches pre-tick the email options on the Book session and Log session forms: send a calendar invite when you book, and send a receipt when you complete. You can still change your mind on each session.

Click Save.

The gym form. The rate card is pre-filled with typical hourly rates by group size.

- How does this gym charge you? Pick one: a monthly rate only, a monthly rate plus an hourly charge, or hourly usage only.
- Monthly rate (before GST) when the gym charges a flat fee.
- Hourly rate by group size. One rate for each number of people from 1 to 10. Each session is charged pro-rata by how long it ran, so at $18/hour a 60-minute session costs $18 and a 90-minute one costs $27. Leave a size blank to use the next smaller size's rate; groups over 10 use the 10-person rate.
- This gym pays me to cover its own clients. Tick this when the owner sometimes goes away and asks you to train their clients. Enter what the gym pays you per session, by group size — before your GST, because here you are invoicing the gym, not the other way round. This is separate from how the gym bills you: a gym you only pay rent to can still pay you for cover. Leave a size blank to use the next smaller size's rate.
- This gym charges GST and its rate. GST you pay a gym is an input tax credit on your own GST return, so it is tracked separately.
- Default gym for new sessions pre-fills the gym on every session you log or book. You can have up to three active gyms; the first one you add can also be assigned to all your existing sessions in one go.
- Active. Inactive gyms stay in old reports but cannot be picked for new sessions. A gym with sessions or finalized reports cannot be removed, only made inactive.

A service needs a name and a default duration; the duration is only a starting point and can be changed on each session.

1. Name it the way you would say it to a client, for example “Personal Training (60 min)” or “Small Group Strength (45 min)”.
2. Default duration in minutes.
3. Leave Active ticked. Untick it later to hide a service you no longer offer without losing its history.
4. Click Save.

Note: A service that has sessions logged against it cannot be deleted, only made inactive, so reports keep adding up.

The rate grid: one row per active service, one column per group size.

1. Give the plan a name clients will recognise, such as “Standard pay-as-you-go”.
2. Fill in the Session rates. Each cell is the price per person, before GST when that many people train together: Single (1), Partner (2), Triple (3) or Quad (4). Partner rates are usually lower per person because two people share the hour. . Package size (optional) is how many sessions this plan is sold in, for example 20. It is only used to suggest an amount when you request payment; leave it blank if the plan is not sold in blocks.
3. Add a Description if you like, and click Create plan.

A FAMILY PLAN

Click Add plan and choose Family (one shared Fitness Wallet). It is priced exactly like a pay-as-you-go plan, with the same rate grid, but a client on it is a household rather than one person: you list the family's members once, and each session charges for the ones who turned up.

The Barnes family might have Mom, Dad and three children on one wallet. If three of them come to a session, the wallet is charged three times the rate for a group of three. If only one comes, it is charged once at the single rate. Nobody has their own balance to top up.

1. Name it something like “Family pay-as-you-go”.
2. Fill in the Session rates as usual. They are per person: a family of four training together pays four times the Quad rate.
3. Click Create plan, then add the household as a client and list its members. See Families in the Clients chapter.

Note: Family members are names, not clients. They share the household’s email address, wallet link and balance, and they never appear in the client list on their own.

A MONTHLY MEMBERSHIP PLAN

Click Add plan and choose Monthly membership. The rate grid disappears and two fields take its place.

The screenshot shows the 'Add plan' form in the BrookeApp interface. On the left is a sidebar with navigation links: Training (Dashboard, Clients, Calendar, Sessions), Pricing (Plans, Services, Invoices), and Reports (Monthly report, Annual report, Gym usage). The 'Plans' link is highlighted. The main form is titled 'Add plan' and contains the following fields and options:

- Plan name: A text input field containing 'Standard pay-as-you-go'.
- How is this plan billed?: Three radio button options:
 - ☐ Pay-as-you-go (Fitness Wallet): Clients deposit money; each session deducts a per-person rate plus GST.
 - ☐ Family (one shared Fitness Wallet): Several named people on one wallet. Each family member who attends is charged the rate for the size of the group.
 - ☒ Monthly membership: A flat fee plus GST is posted each month; all sessions are included.
- Monthly fee (before GST): A text input field containing '300.00'.
- Billing day of month: A text input field containing '1'. Below it, a note says '1-28 so every month works.'
- Description: A text input field containing 'Who is this plan for? (optional)'.
- Active: A checked checkbox. Below it, a note says 'Inactive plans can't be assigned to new clients.'
- Buttons: 'Create plan' (purple) and 'Cancel' (white).

At the bottom left of the sidebar, there is a user profile section showing 'B Brooke' and a dropdown arrow.

A monthly plan has a fee and a billing day instead of a rate grid.

1. Monthly fee (before GST). GST is added when the fee is posted.
2. Billing day of month, from 1 to 28 so it exists in every month. Each morning BrookeApp checks whether any active monthly client’s billing day has arrived and posts the fee to their account, once per month, never twice.
3. Click Create plan.

Tip: Different clients can be on different plans, so a long-time client can stay on a “Legacy” rate while new clients join at today’s prices. To move a client between plans, edit the client, not the plan.

Editing and removing plans

Edit changes prices for everyone on that plan from the next session onward; sessions already charged keep the price they were charged at. A plan with clients on it cannot be deleted. Move them to another plan first, or untick Active so no new clients can be added to it.

Clients and Fitness Wallets

A client's page is where money is recorded and where you check what they owe or have on credit. Everything about one person is there: their plan, contact details, their private wallet link, every deposit and charge, and every session they attended.

Balance is what the client has on credit (black) or owes (red).

- Search by name or email.
- The status filter shows Active clients by default; switch to Inactive to find people who have paused.
- The plan filter narrows the list to one plan.
- Click a name or Open to go to their page.

Add a client

Click Add client.

The client form. Plan is the important choice; everything else can be filled in later.

1. First name is required; last name, email and phone are optional but the email is needed for invites, receipts and the wallet link.
2. Plan. Pick the plan this person pays under. “No plan yet” is allowed, but you will not be able to charge them for a session until one is chosen.
3. Default gym appears when you have more than one gym and pre-fills the gym on their sessions.
4. Client since. Monthly fees are never posted for months before this date, so a member who joins mid-year is not charged for January.
5. Notes are private to you.
6. Click Add client. You land on their page.

Families

A household that trains together can share one client record and one Fitness Wallet. Put the client on a family plan (see Services and plans) and a Family members box appears on the client form.

1. Put the household’s name in Family name — “Barnes”, say, with “Family” as the last name, so the client reads as “Barnes Family”.
2. List the members, one per line, up to ten. Use whatever you would say out loud: “Mom (Sarah)”, “Dad”, “Ellie”.
3. Save. The client page now shows a Family members card, and the household gets one email address, one wallet link and one balance.

A family client: one wallet, the members listed on the page, and ledger lines that name who trained.

When you log or book a session you add “Barnes Family” once, then tick which members are coming. Nobody is ticked to begin with, so a session cannot quietly charge for someone who stayed home. The wallet is charged once for the session, for the people who were there, and the ledger line names them.

Removing a member who has already trained keeps them on those past sessions; they simply stop being offered on new ones. Members you add later do not join bookings that already exist — open a repeating booking and use Apply attendees to following if you want them added.

B Brooke

A pay-as-you-go client. The buttons across the top are the actions you take on this person.

- Fitness Wallet balance (or Account balance for a monthly member) shows prepaid credit or an amount owing, GST included.
- Contact shows their details, client-since date, and usual gym.
- Client wallet link is their private page; see below.
- Ledger is every money movement, newest first: deposits, session charges, monthly fees, adjustments and refunds, each with the before-GST amount and the GST portion.
- Training history lists every session they attended, with the rate tier that applied.

Record payment

A deposit. Only the payment methods you enabled in Settings are offered.

1. Amount received, exactly as paid. Deposits include GST; the app works out the tax portion for your reports.
2. Payment method: cash, cheque or e-Transfer.
3. Date received, in case you are entering it later.
4. Reference, such as the cheque number or the e-Transfer reference, and an optional Note.
5. Click Record payment. The balance updates immediately.

For a monthly member, a payment pays down the fee that was posted; for a pay-as-you-go client it adds to the wallet.

Credits, debits and refunds

For anything that is not a payment or a session, use Adjustment.

Adjustment or refund

Adjustments always need a note so you can explain them later.

- Credit adds to the balance, for example a referral bonus or a make-good for a cancelled session.
- Debit deducts, for example a late-cancellation charge.
- Refund records money you gave back, and asks how it was returned so the reports stay right.

Fixing a mistake

Every ledger row that is not a session charge has Edit and Void beside it.

- Edit changes the amount, date, method, reference or description in place. A Reason for this change is required, and the app recalculates GST the way the entry was created: payments and refunds are GST-inclusive, monthly fees are entered before GST, adjustments carry none. The row is marked as edited.
- Void strikes the row out and removes it from balances and reports without deleting it, so the history stays honest.

- The clock button at the end of every row, Change history, opens its history: who changed what, when, from which value to which, and why. Creations and voids are recorded too, so an entry can still be explained months later.

Edit keeps the row and writes the change to its history.

Change history lists every creation, edit and void with who, when and why.

Session charges cannot be edited or voided here; they follow their session. To change one, open the session and use Reopen, which is covered in the Logging sessions chapter.

Posting a monthly fee by hand

Monthly fees post themselves each morning. If you need one now, for example on the day a new member joins, open the member's page and click Post monthly fee. It is safe to click twice; a month is never charged twice.

Tip: When a client's wallet runs low, the dashboard tells you. Send them their wallet link so they can see the balance themselves, and record the top-up when it arrives.

Requesting payment and invoices

Recording a payment is for money that has already arrived. When you want to ask for money, send an invoice. BrookeApp numbers it (INV-0001, INV-0002 and so on), emails it to the client with your payment details, keeps track of what has come in against it, and can chase it for you.

The amount is suggested from the client's plan and can be changed before sending.

1. Amount (before GST). A suggestion is shown underneath, worked out from the plan, with the GST and total it comes to:
 - A monthly member is asked for the monthly fee plus GST, whatever their balance.
 - A pay-as-you-go or family client is asked for a package: the plan's package size times its single-person rate, plus GST. Set the package size on the plan (Pricing → Plans). With no package size the amount starts empty and you type it.
2. Issued and Due dates; due is a week away by default.
3. A Message to the client, such as “This covers your next 20 sessions.” It goes in the email as its own paragraph.
4. Click Send request. The invoice is emailed and appears under Payment requests on the client's page with the status Sent.

								Void	Delete

Every invoice for this client, with what has been received against it.

The email shows the breakdown with GST, your accepted payment methods and e-Transfer address, and a link to the client's wallet page, which lists anything still outstanding. If you changed the suggested amount, the breakdown collapses to a single line so the client never sees arithmetic that no longer adds up.

How an invoice gets paid

An invoice is never “marked” paid behind the scenes. Whether it is paid is worked out from the payments linked to it, so it always agrees with the ledger:

- When you Record payment for a client with an open invoice, the dialog offers the oldest open one under Against a request. Leave it selected and the invoice settles itself. The ledger row names the invoice.
- A part payment leaves the invoice partly paid; the row shows what has been received.
- An overpayment settles it, and the surplus stays as wallet credit.
- If you later edit or void that payment, the invoice follows: it reopens if the money is no longer there.

The Invoices page

Invoices in the sidebar, under Pricing, lists every invoice you have sent, open ones first with the soonest due at the top.

The three cards show what is outstanding, what is overdue, and what has been received against invoices this month.

- Search by number or client, and filter to Open, Overdue, Paid, Void or All.
- Remind emails the invoice again, worded as a reminder, with anything already received and what is left. The row shows when it was last chased. Use it for a lost email too: a reminder carries everything the original did.
- Mark paid records a real payment against the invoice. The amount is pre-filled with what is outstanding; enter less to record a part payment. Unless you untick it, the client gets a thank-you email with their new balance, and their wallet page shows the invoice as Paid with the date.

Record payment

Mark paid is Record payment with the invoice already chosen.

- Void cancels the ask while something is still owed. Money already received stays on the ledger. Void is not offered on a paid invoice, because that would tell the client a settled bill was cancelled.
- Delete is for mistakes, and only while nothing has been received. The number is retired rather than reused, so a number that is already in a client's inbox is never handed to someone else.

The same Remind, Mark paid, Void and Delete actions appear beside each invoice on the client's page.

Tip: Chase from the Invoices page once a week. Sort is already by due date, so the top of the list is the person to nudge first.

Note: Invoices are for asking; the ledger is for what happened. A voided invoice does not touch the client's balance, and a payment recorded without an invoice is still just a payment.

Logging sessions

Logging a session is the moment money moves. You say who came, the app picks the right rate for that group size, and each person's share plus GST is deducted from their Fitness Wallet. Monthly members are recorded too, so their history is complete, but they are not charged per session.

Two attendees make it a Partner session. Each person is charged the partner rate from their own plan, plus GST.

- The badge above the table shows the tier (“Partner session · 2 people”). Groups of five or more are named by their size and billed at the Quad rate. Each attendee row shows what they will be charged, worked out from their plan, so two people on different plans pay different amounts for the same hour.
- Change Attendance for anyone who didn’t train:
 - Missed / late cancel charges them as if they came, at the rate for the group as it was booked, so the people who did come aren’t pushed up to a smaller group’s rate. They don’t count toward what the gym charges you. A reason is required, because it’s what the client reads on their receipt and wallet page.
 - No-show keeps them on the record without charging them, and the tier drops to match the people who did come.

6. A family client adds one row with its members listed underneath. Tick the ones who came; select all ticks the lot. The tier counts people, not rows, so two Barnes members and one other client make it a Triple session for all three, and the family's wallet is charged twice at the triple rate. A family with nobody ticked is not charged, and the form asks you to pick someone before it will complete. To charge a family's late cancel, set it to Missed / late cancel and tick the members who were booked.
7. Use Price override to charge someone a different before-GST amount just this once, for example a trial rate, or a reduced fee for a late cancel. Family members have their own override each, so one child can be priced differently without touching the rest. The preview updates as you type.
8. The box under each client's name is a note the client sees. It goes on their receipt, their wallet activity and their training history, so write it for them. For a late cancel it holds the reason and must be filled in. For everyone else it's optional, e.g. "Includes the extra 15 minutes". Your own Notes field above stays private.
9. The amber You pay gym box shows what the gym charges you for this session, counting only the people who were in the room. Untick Charge gym for this session if it shouldn't bill you, and the session is left off the gym usage report. If nobody was in the room, the box says so and the gym isn't charged at all.

A one-off override for Ava. Ben is still on his plan rate.

10. Tick Email attendees a receipt if you want each person to get a summary and their remaining balance. The default comes from Settings → Business. A family gets one email, listing who trained and what each of them cost. A late cancel gets a late-cancellation receipt with your reason.
11. Click Complete & charge. The charges are posted and you are taken to the session page.

Tip: Save as scheduled stores the session without charging anyone. Use it for a session that is still in the future, or if you want to finish the attendance list later.

Important: If a client's plan has no rate for the service, the form says so instead of guessing, and will not charge until you add the rate to the plan or use an override.

Covering a gym's own clients

When the gym owner goes on vacation and asks you to train their clients, the money runs backwards: the gym pays you, and you owe it nothing for the space.

Set up what the gym pays you first, in Settings → Gyms (see Settings). Once that is saved, a tick box appears on Log session and Book session:

1. Tick I'm covering the gym's own clients.
2. Pick the gym you are covering for. This is required even if you only have one gym, because the credit has to land on that gym's statement.
3. Type the names of the people you trained, one per line, using Add another person for more. How many names you type is what sets the rate — one person might be $50, two might be $70.
4. The green line shows what the gym will owe you, GST included, before you save.

These names are plain text. They are not clients, they get no wallet, no ledger entry and no email, and they never appear in your client list — which is the point, since the gym's clients change every time.

The fee is worked out and stored when the session is completed, so changing the rate card later never restates a month you have already reported on. Reopening a cover session clears the fee and keeps the names; completing it again re-prices at the current rate.

Cover sessions show up in three places: on that gym's usage report as a credit that reduces what you owe, in Reports → Monthly and Annual as revenue and GST you charged, and on your dashboard's revenue figure.

Note: A cover session cannot also include your own clients. If you trained a mix, log two sessions — otherwise it is ambiguous whether you owe the gym usage for your own client that hour.

Log many sessions at once

For a backlog, or when you are moving onto BrookeApp from a notebook, Bulk log logs up to 50 sessions with one set-up. Click Log session, then Bulk log at the top right.

2. Add clients. The same people are marked as attended on every date, so split a batch if the group changed.
3. Pick the dates by clicking days on the month calendar (click again to drop one), or paste dates from a spreadsheet column, one per line or separated by commas, and click Add pasted dates. The counter shows how many of the 50 you have used.
4. If a picked date already has a session for one of these clients, the date is marked with an amber ! and the page warns you, so an import cannot quietly charge someone twice.
5. Check the total the batch will charge, decide whether to Email attendees a receipt for each session (usually left off for past sessions), and click Log N sessions & charge. Save all as scheduled stores them without charging, for dates still to come.

The whole batch is saved together: if anything is wrong, nothing is charged. Each session is a normal completed session afterwards and can be reopened on its own.

Note: Bulk log has the Charge the gym switch but no per-person attendance choice, because one attendee list is stamped onto every date. Log a session with a late cancel on its own.

Gym
Used for the gym usage report.

Westside Athletic Club

Costs you $26.00 — $26.00/hour × 60 min, before GST.

☒ Counts toward gym usage
Untick if the gym shouldn't charge for this session.

B Brooke

A completed session: who came, what each person was charged, and the gym it counts toward.

- Email receipts sends (or resends) the receipt to everyone who attended and has an email address.
- Reopen is how you fix a mistake. It voids every charge from this session so you can correct the attendance, then charge again.
- The Gym panel lets you change which gym the session counts toward, or untick Counts toward gym usage if the gym should not charge you for it. If everyone cancelled late or didn't show, it says nobody was in the room and there is nothing to untick.
- Each client's Attendance and any note you left for them are shown beside their charge.

Fix a session with Reopen

1. Open the session and click Reopen. Confirm the prompt. The charges are voided and the session goes back to Scheduled.

B Brooke

After Reopen you can tick and untick attendees, add people, set overrides, and complete again.

2. Correct the attendance: mark a no-show or a late cancel, add someone you forgot with Add clients, or set an override. Late cancels and their reasons survive the reopen, so you only change what was wrong.
3. Click Complete & charge. New charges are posted at the corrected tier. The voided charges stay visible in each client's ledger, struck through, so the trail is clear.

Calendar and booking

Logging is for sessions that already happened. Booking is for the future: it puts a session on your calendar, optionally emails each client a calendar invite, and later you complete it with one click.

Day view shows one day on the same time grid, with the service, gym and status on each session.

Day and Week open at 7 am, or earlier if a session starts before then; scroll the grid to see the rest of the day. A red line marks the current time on today's column. Sessions that overlap sit side by side, marked .

- Click a session to open it.
- Click an empty time on the Day or Week grid to book a session at that time. The form opens with the date and time filled in.
- Click a date number or a week column's heading to see that whole day.
- Click the + on a day to book a session on that date.

The calendar on your phone

On a phone, the calendar opens in List view: the next two weeks as an agenda, one heading per day that has something booked. Each row shows who, where, and the start and end time. Today is always listed, even when it is empty. Tap Show 2 more weeks at the bottom to see further ahead; the arrows move two weeks at a time. A session that has finished but hasn't been logged is marked Not logged. List view works on a computer too: click List.

On a phone the calendar opens as a list of the days ahead.

Tap a session and a panel slides up from the bottom of the screen with three choices:

- Log session lists everyone who was booked. Set each person to Attended, Missed / late cancel or No-show, and tick the family members who came. Check the total, then tap Log & charge. A late cancel needs a reason, which the client sees on their receipt.
- Edit moves the session to a new date, time or length. For a session in a repeat, choose whether later sessions move too. If the new time overlaps another booking you'll see a warning, but you can still save.
- Cancel cancels this session, or this one and the rest of its repeat. No one is charged.

Logging from the list. The prices are the same ones the session page uses.

Clients who were sent an invite get an updated invite or a cancellation automatically, just as when you change the session from its own page. For anything else, such as adding clients, changing the service or gym, price overrides or reopening a logged session, tap Open full session.

3. Leave Email attendees a calendar invite ticked to send each client a message with an `.ics` invite they can accept into their phone's calendar. Clients without an email address are skipped.
4. If the slot overlaps something already in your diary, a notice headed Something else is booked at this time lists each clash with its time, service and attendees, and the button changes to Book session anyway. Nothing is blocked, because back-to-back sessions and hand-offs look like clashes too; only you know which are real. A repeat reports how many of its dates land on an existing session.

Save new time

For a session in a repeat, choose whether the change applies to just this date or to every later session too.

For a session that belongs to a repeat, Reschedule and Cancel both ask Apply to:

- Only this session changes this date and nothing else.
- This and the following sessions shifts every later session in the repeat by the same number of days and gives them the new time, length, service and gym. Earlier sessions, completed sessions and cancelled sessions are never touched.

To cancel the rest of a repeat, use Cancel this & following. Invited clients get a single cancellation email covering every affected date.

Tip: Clients cannot change bookings themselves. Invites and the wallet page tell them to contact you, using the booking instructions from Settings → Business.

Emails your clients receive

BrookeApp sends a small number of emails to clients on your behalf. They come from the app's address with your business name, and replies go to your own email. They carry the BrookeApp badge and purple accents so they match the wallet page the client already knows. Every one of them includes your booking instructions and a button to the client's private Fitness Wallet page.

Two switches in Settings → Business decide whether the invite and receipt options are ticked by default on each form. You can still change either one per session.

Booking invite

Sent when you book a session with Email attendees a calendar invite ticked, or when you click Send invites on a scheduled session. The calendar file is attached so the client can accept it into their own calendar.

Your session is booked

Hi Ava,

Brooke Fitness has booked you in for a training session:

Personal Training (60 min)

Saturday, September 19, 2026

9:00 am – 10:00 am (60 min)

A calendar invite is attached. Accept it to add this session to your calendar; if the time changes, an updated invite will replace it.

Need to change or cancel? Please contact Brooke Fitness directly rather than replying to the invite.

To book or change a session, text Brooke at 604-555-0199 or reply to this email.

See you soon,
Brooke Fitness

The invite tells the client to contact you, not reply to the calendar, for changes.

- Updated invite. When you reschedule a session whose invites were already sent, each invited client gets a new version that replaces the old one in their calendar.
- Cancellation. Cancelling or deleting a session whose invites were sent emails a cancellation that removes it from their calendar. Only clients who were sent an invite are told.
- Repeats send one email per client listing every date, with a single calendar file that holds all of them. Rescheduling or cancelling “this and following” sends one update covering every changed date.

Receipt

Sent when you complete a session with Email attendees a receipt ticked, or when you click Email receipts on a completed session. Only people who attended and have an email address receive one.

The receipt shows the tier rate, GST, the amount deducted and the remaining Fitness Wallet balance, then how to top up.

For a monthly member the receipt confirms the session and shows any amount owing on their account instead of a wallet balance.

For a late cancel the receipt is headed Missed / late-cancelled session and shows your reason. The charge is labelled as a late cancellation, and a family's receipt lists who was booked instead of who trained. If you left a note for someone who did train, it appears under the session details.

Invoice, reminder and thank-you

Sent from Request payment, Remind and Mark paid (see Requesting payment and invoices). The invoice shows the amount with GST, the due date, your note, how to pay, and a link to the wallet page; a reminder adds what has been received and what is left; the thank-you confirms the payment and the new balance.

Your client's Fitness Wallet page

Each client has a private web page that shows their side of the story: balance, plan, how to pay, upcoming bookings, and every deposit and session. There is no password. The address itself is the key, which is why the app calls it a link rather than an account.

Ava's page. The balance is followed by a plain-English reading of it, such as "about 5 single sessions left". For a family it counts whole-family sessions, priced as though every member attends, so the number is never optimistic.

- Fitness Wallet balance (or Account balance for a member) with a sentence explaining what it means.
- Your plan and how it bills, and How to pay with your accepted methods and e-Transfer address. An amber Payment requested panel appears above everything when an invoice is open, with the number, amount, due date and your message, and paid invoices are listed lower down with the date they were settled.
- Book or change a session repeats that only you can book, move or cancel, with your booking instructions, phone and email.
- Upcoming sessions, then Activity (deposits and charges) and Training history (sessions, with a "Missed / late cancel" badge and your reason for a charged late cancel, and a "No-show" badge for one that wasn't charged). Long lists are split into pages.

Sharing the link safely

- Send it with Copy link or Email link from the client's page. It is also inside every invite and receipt, so most clients will already have it.

- Ask clients not to forward it. The page says so at the bottom.
- If a client thinks someone else has it, click Reset link on their page. The old address stops working immediately and the new one is included in their next email.

Note: The page is read-only. Clients cannot book, cancel, or change anything, and nothing on it can be used to reach your other clients. Links are long random codes, the page is hidden from search engines, and it stops working if your account is suspended.

Reports

Reports turn the ledger into numbers you can act on: what you earned, what you received, how much GST is involved, and what you owe each gym. Every report is built from the same ledger the client pages show, so they always agree.

GST summary

GST charged on sessions and fees (accrual basis)	$75.30
GST embedded in money received (cash basis)	$60.00

Prepaid wallet deposits mean the two bases differ. Ask your accountant which one to remit on; both are tracked here and in the annual export.

Balances at month end

As of Aug 31, 2026

Prepaid Fitness Wallet credit held (a liability)	$2,029.00
Owing to you by clients	$140.30

August for the demo trainer.

- The four cards: sessions completed (with attendances), revenue before GST split into sessions and monthly fees, GST charged, and payments received net of refunds. Attendances count people, so a family of three that trained together counts as three.

- Sessions by service groups completed sessions by service and tier. Revenue here counts pay-as-you-go charges only; members' sessions are included in their fee.
- Money received is the cash basis: payments dated in this month, by method, with the GST portion of that money worked out at 5/105.
- Gym cover fees count as revenue and as GST you charged, on the day you trained the gym's clients. They never show under Money received: the gym settles by crediting the amount against its own invoice rather than paying you cash, so the accrual and cash figures differ by that amount until you reconcile the gym's statement.
- GST summary shows both bases side by side. Accrual is the GST on what you charged. Cash is the GST embedded in what you actually received. Prepaid wallet deposits make the two differ, because money arrives before the sessions it pays for. Ask your accountant which basis to remit on; both are tracked.
- Balances at month end: the prepaid credit you are holding for clients (a liability) and what clients owe you.

Reading this report

Revenue is what you charged (sessions deducted from Fitness Wallets plus monthly fees), before GST, on the date of the session or fee. Money received is what actually came in, by payment method. Prepaid held is client credit you're holding at month end; owing is fees not yet paid. The CSV export includes every column for your accountant.

B Brooke

One row per month with a total line. Every column is in the CSV.

The table has sessions, session revenue, monthly fees, revenue, GST charged, money received by each payment method, refunds, net received, prepaid credit held and amounts owing. Export CSV downloads the whole year for your accountant.

Gym usage report

Reports → Gym usage shows what you owe a gym for a month, laid out to match the invoice the gym sends you. Pick the gym (if you have more than one) and the month.

A draft month. Every session counts until you untick it.

- The cards: sessions counted, people trained, usage charges (with the monthly rate underneath) and the total owed including GST. Family members count individually here too, because the gym charges by how many bodies were in the room.
- Summary by group size shows how many sessions of each size, the hours logged and the hourly rate for each, using the gym's rate card from Settings.
- Amount owed adds the usage charges, monthly rate and GST.
- Detail lists every completed session at that gym that had someone in the room, with its date, time, group size, length, hourly rate and charge. Sessions are billed pro-rata by length, so two sessions of the same size can cost different amounts. Untick a row to exclude a session the gym should not charge for; the totals update immediately.

Group size counts the people who were in the room. A client marked Missed / late cancel pays you, but the gym doesn't charge for them. A session nobody turned up to isn't listed at all, because the gym has nothing to charge for. Sessions logged with Charge gym for this session unticked arrive already unticked here.

Note: Months you already finalized keep their snapshot. Reopening and re-finalizing an old month recalculates it with these rules, so an old all-no-show session that was billed at the one-person rate drops out.

If some completed sessions have no gym, a notice offers to assign them to the selected gym in one click.

COVERING THE GYM'S CLIENTS

When the gym owner is away and asks you to train their clients, the money goes the other way: the gym pays you, and you owe it nothing for the space. Log those as cover sessions (see Sessions), and they appear here in their own section, Covering gym's clients, below the usage detail.

The section lists each cover session with who you trained, how many people, and what you charge. Its total is subtracted from what you owe, so the headline figure is the net. If you covered more than you trained your own clients that month, the total goes negative and reads the gym owes you.

Unticking a cover session takes it off the statement and out of your revenue — it was never invoiced, so it is not income.

Watch the two GST lines. The GST on the usage charges is tax the gym charges you, which you claim back as an input tax credit. The GST on the cover fees is tax you charge the gym, which you collect and remit. They can even be different percentages. That is why the report never nets the before-tax amounts together — each side keeps its own tax, and only the totals are subtracted.

FINALIZE A MONTH

When the report matches the gym's invoice, click Finalize. The month is locked and a snapshot is stored, so later edits to sessions do not change what you agreed to pay.

A finalized month shows when it was locked. The checkboxes are disabled.

Reopen unlocks it if something needs to change. CSV downloads the detail table and Print gives a clean printable layout, useful to keep with the invoice.

Tip: GST you pay to the gym is an input tax credit on your own GST return. The report shows it separately for that reason.

Platform administration

Note: This chapter is for the platform owner. Trainers do not see the Admin area.

BrookeApp is multi-tenant: each trainer has a private workspace. The Admin area, which appears in the sidebar only for administrator accounts, is for the platform owner to support trainers and watch sign-ups. It shows account status and activity counts only. Trainers' clients, balances, payments and reports are never visible to an administrator.

Overview

Admin in the sidebar opens the overview.

Counts only: trainers, sign-ups, activity and sessions, never dollar amounts.

- The cards: trainers signed up (and suspended), new this month versus last, active in the last 30 days with verified and unverified counts, and sessions completed this month with all-time totals.
- Trainer sign-ups, last 12 months is a simple bar chart.

- Needs a hand lists accounts that registered more than a day ago and never verified their email, so you can reach out.
- Newest trainers links to the most recent accounts.

Trainers

The main content area is titled 'Brooke' and shows the email 'brooke@example.com'. It features an 'Account' section with status 'Active' and details like business name, phone, and login history. Below this are three boxes for 'Clients' (9), 'Sessions logged' (52), and 'Plans' (4). A note at the bottom states that counts are private. On the right, a 'Support actions' panel offers options like 'Send password reset email', 'Suspend account', and 'Make administrator'.

Account details, activity counts, and the support actions on the right.

Support actions

- Send password reset email when a trainer is locked out.
- Resend verification email, or Activate account to mark the email verified by hand if their mail is not arriving.
- Suspend account logs the trainer out, blocks logins, and turns off their clients' wallet links. Reinstate account reverses it.
- Make administrator or Revoke administrator access. You cannot suspend or change the administrator flag on your own account.

Granting the first administrator

The first administrator is created from the command line on the server:

```
php artisan admin:grant you@example.com
```

After that, administrators can be added and removed from the Trainers page.

FAQ and glossary

I Invoice | A numbered payment request emailed to a client. Paid means the payments linked to it add up to its total. I I Late cancel | A client who cancelled too late or did not turn up but is still charged, at the rate for the group as booked, with a reason they can read. I I No-show | A booked client who did not come and is not charged. I I Bulk log | Logging up to 50 sessions with the same service and clients in one go. I

Frequently asked questions

A client's balance is negative. What happened? A pay-as-you-go client trained more than they had deposited, or a monthly member's fee has been posted and not yet paid. Record the payment when it arrives and the balance returns to zero or above. The dashboard lists everyone in this state.

Why does a session need a gym? So the Gym usage report can reconcile every session against the gym's invoice. If you train at one gym it is filled in automatically. If you do not rent gym space by the hour, add the gym anyway with "Monthly rate only" or skip gyms entirely; the field only appears once you have more than one.

How do I move a client to a different plan? Open the client, click Edit, choose the new plan and save. Sessions from then on use the new rates; sessions already charged are unchanged.

I logged a session wrongly. Open it and click Reopen. Every charge is voided, you fix the attendance, and Complete & charge posts it again. Do not void the session charges from the ledger; the app will point you to Reopen instead.

I recorded a payment wrongly. Click Edit on that row in the client's ledger, fix it and give a reason; the change is kept in the row's history. If it should never have existed, click Void instead. Voided rows stay visible, struck through.

How do I ask a client for money? Open the client and click Request payment. The amount is suggested from their plan, the invoice is emailed, and it settles itself when you record the payment against it. Invoices in the sidebar lists everything outstanding.

I have a notebook full of past sessions to enter. Use Bulk log (Log session, then Bulk log): one service and group of clients, up to 50 dates at once, with a warning if a date already has a session for someone.

Which GST figure do I remit? The monthly and annual reports show both. Accrual is GST on what you charged; cash is the GST inside what you received. They differ because of prepaid wallet deposits. Your accountant will tell you which basis you file on.

When are monthly fees posted? Each morning at 6:00 Pacific time, for every active monthly member whose billing day has arrived, and never twice in the same month. Post monthly fee on the client page does the same thing on demand. Fees are not posted for months before the client's "Client since" date.

Can clients pay by card? Not yet. Cash, cheque and e-Transfer are supported. Card payments are planned.

Can a client book their own session? No. The invite, receipt and wallet page all tell clients to contact you, using the booking instructions from Settings → Business. Only you can book, move or cancel.

A client's wallet link was forwarded to someone else. Open the client and click Reset link. The old link stops working immediately.

What happens if my account is suspended? You are logged out and cannot log in, and your clients' wallet links stop working, until an administrator reinstates the account. Your data is kept.

Glossary

Term	Meaning
Fitness Wallet	A client's prepaid balance. Deposits go in; each session takes its share plus GST out.
Plan	How a client pays: pay-as-you-go with a rate grid, a family plan sharing one wallet, or a monthly membership with a flat fee.
Family plan	One client record for a household, with up to ten named members on a single Fitness Wallet. Each member who attends a session is charged for it.
Member	One person inside a family client. Members are names only: they share the household's email, wallet link and balance.
Service	Something you offer, such as a 60-minute personal training session, with a default length.
Tier	The group size used to pick the rate: Single (1), Partner (2), Triple (3) or Quad (4). Larger groups are named by their size and pay the Quad rate.
Rate grid	A plan's price per person for each service at each tier, before GST.
Log	Record a session that has already happened and charge for it.
Book	Put a future session on the calendar, optionally with calendar invites.
Repeat	A booking that creates one session per date on chosen weekdays until an end date.
Reopen	Void a completed session's charges so attendance can be corrected and charged again.
Void	Strike a ledger row out so it no longer counts, while keeping it visible.
Ledger	The complete list of a client's payments, charges, fees, adjustments and refunds.
Accrual basis	GST counted when it is charged.
Cash basis	GST counted when the money is received.
Wallet link	A client's private, password-free page showing their balance, bookings and history.
Finalize	Lock a gym's month so the usage report matches the invoice you paid.
Cover session	A session where you trained the gym's own clients while the owner was away. The gym pays you a fixed fee by group size, you owe it nothing for the space, and no client is charged.
